PCF Blogs and Updates!

Thank you to everyone who joined our recent Understanding Mental Capacity for Young People with SEND evening webinar. It was wonderful to welcome so many parents and carers keen to build confidence around decision-making as young people move towards adulthood.

The session provided valuable information, discussion and practical guidance on an important topic for many families. If you were unable to attend, or would like to revisit the information shared, you can catch up using the link below.

Presenting the Knowing ME profiling tool at the CANDDID Conference 2026

It was a pleasure to present alongside the study team on the Knowing Me neurodiversity profiling tool at this conference.

There has been significant work across Cheshire and Merseyside involving professionals, parent carers, and children and young people with lived experience to shape this work collaboratively.

Take a look at some of the highlights from the day, along with key links to the work we've been involved in.

Reasonable adjustments: Our legal duty

Reasonable adjustments are changes that schools and colleges make to remove or reduce barriers that could disadvantage any pupil, including those with SEND. They are practical, proportionate and pupil-centred.

What could adjustments look like?

Large print,
colour contrast,
simplified
formats

Laptops,
reading pens,
visual support

Flexible approach to supporting social and communication needs.

Flexible seating or classroom layout changes

Toilet passes

Extra time,
thinking breaks

Clear language,
visuals,
scaffolding

Alternative assessment and homework formats/timing

Consideration of uniform/clothing

Key Principles

Proactive: Plan ahead for barriers – don't wait for a problem.

Reasonable: Only what is reasonable is required, based on context and resources.

Inclusive: Applies to any pupil, including those with SEND

Ask yourself: "Can this pupil access learning and school life in the same way as others? If not, what can we reasonably change?"

Need support? Speak to your SENDCo. or leadership team.

Why it Matters

Reasonable adjustments promote:

Equal access to learning and school life

Belonging, relationships and wellbeing

Improved participation and outcomes

Understanding Quality First Teaching and Reasonable Adjustments

Our parent volunteer representatives have been working alongside Cheshire West and Chester Principal Educational Psychologist, and professionals across health and education to co-produce an Ordinarily Available Inclusive Provision (OAIP) document, which will be published shortly. The document is now in its final stages, undergoing formatting and preparation for publication.

As part of this work, we have recognised the importance of reasonable adjustments, and an accompanying infographic has been developed to provide practical examples of what these can look like in practice.

Building on this, we have also produced a blog in response to some confusion around the difference between Quality First Teaching and reasonable adjustments. In the blog, we explore these distinctions and break them down in a practical, accessible way.

Take a look at the blog to find out more.

SEND Reform National Consultation

Schools White Paper: SEND Reform Proposals — Join the Conversation

The government has published its schools white paper, Every Child Achieving and Thriving, setting out proposals to reform the SEND system in England.

Important: These are proposals only.....the law has not changed, and existing SEND rights remain in place.

There is a consultation open until 18th May 2026, giving families, charities and professionals the chance to influence what happens next.

Even if proposals are passed through Parliament, changes are not expected until 2029, with implementation phased over time.

What is being proposed?

Some key proposals include:

- ✓ Individual Support Plans (ISPs) for all children with SEND
- ✓ Three new support levels — Targeted, Targeted Plus and Specialist
- ✓ Future EHCPs linked to children with the most complex needs

- ✓ Changes to accountability, complaints and tribunal arrangements
- ✓ Investment in inclusion, training and specialist support

The government has also said:

- ☀ No child will lose support
- ☀ Children in special schools keep their places if they choose
- ☀ No moves from EHCPs to ISPs before 2029/2030

Join us on 12th May to discuss SEND Reform at Vicars Cross Gold Club, Tarvin, Chester at our Education, Inclusion and Mental Health forum...SEND Reform will be on the agenda.

We'll:

- 💬 Talk through key proposals
- 👂 Hold tabletop discussions with parent carers and professionals
- 📄 Gather views to help shape our consultation response

Over 700 parent carers completed our recent survey, and those views will help inform our response.

👉 Book your place here: Education & Mental Health Forum - May 2026

Can't make the event? Share your views with us to help us shape our response to the consultation.

We encourage everyone to have a say directly to the Government on the link below
